

Quantum error correction thresholds are central to fault tolerant quantum computing.

The surface code achieves a high threshold using local stabilizer measurements.